And feul behind the subterfuge of art. Prior.

The last part of the water doth partly rise into a top, and partly goeth into a sediment in the bottom. baen.
 Gather'd like foam, and serv'd to itself, fishm.
 Self-fed and self-consum'd. W. G.

It is barbarous incivility scurrilously to sport with that which others count religion.

Dryden.
Tillotson.

So do the winds and thunders cleanse the air,
So working seas settle and purge the wine.
Amphibious between sea and land
The river horse.
